TWO MILLION RAILROAD WORKERS FACE LOWERED WAGES EFFECTIVE JULY 1

OLD AGREEMENT FOR OPERATION OF ROADS OFF

Twelve Per Cent Cut In Workers' Pay Is Announced.

PUBLISH SCHEDULES

It is Believed That Men Will Accept Decreased Wages.

Chicago, June 1.—Two million railroad workers in the United States are facing an entirely new wage and working condition on July 1 as the result of a decision made public today by the United States Railway Labor Board. The present month, the railroad employees must decide whether their attitude toward the new deal will be.

The decision of the railroad board is to cut wages approximately 12 percent from the present scale, is effective July 1. On that date, also, the present national agreement which prescribes rules under which the employees now work, expires. After July 1 the transportation system of the country will be operated under entirely new conditions as to wage and working rules.

Leaders of the railway workers have withheld comment on the decision of the board, pending a closer study of its provisions. In some circles, it was regarded as a victory for the men, however, in as much as the railroads had asked wage reductions aggregating 25 per cent.

Will Accept
It is believed that the workers will accept the wage cuts, regarding as more vital the provisions of the new working agreements that are to be drafted.

The aggregate reduction, if applied to employees of the class one carriers would total $400,000,000 annually. Under the award, the average railroaders pay will be $125 compared to $141 a month as at present.

In making the award, the board declared that during government control of railroads, wages had increased from an average of $78 in December 1917 to $116 a month in January 1920. A subsequent award of the board, increased this average to the $141 monthly average existing now. This the board stated was an average increase of eighty one per cent to all employees and an increase of over 100 per cent to unskilled laborers over the wages received prior to government control.

The decision, while returned on the specified dispute brought by the New York Central railroad company, et al, against the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks involved seventy two trunk systems and ninety one subsidiary "short lines." It also applied to thirty one distinct unions, including the four great brotherhoods.

Schedule Given

Private S. P. Mace, 4th Ordnance Co., and L. J. Tittlow of the 34th Ordnance Co., were less seriously injured.

Neither Major Borden nor Captain Roberts attempted in oral reports tonight to fix the responsibility for the explosion. They said they had been unable to ascertain the full facts of the disaster but would make a thorough investigation before returning here. They were directed by Major General Clarence C. Williams, chief of ordnance to submit all information that might throw any light upon the incident. He ordered them to Aberdeen from here by airplane upon receipt of first reports of the explosion.

According to other reports, however a 50-pound bomb rolled from the airplane and was struck by the rudder as the plane swung around causing the explosion.

They were wed in Paris on April 21 last. In her complaint, Mrs. White asserts that the pastor on May 12 drove her from his home in Marlboro, Ulster County, New York, and told her that she need not stay there any more. She alleged manhandling of Pastor White by the self-appointed "clansmen" occurred when, according to reports the pastor was taken from his house by the "committee" driven out thirteen miles into the country, beaten and forced to walk the distance back to his home.

PEACE RETURNING TO EUROPE

London, June 1.—Peace normalcy is returning slowly to Europe, but it is coming back. British officials pointed out today that for the first time since the signing of the treaty of Versailles Europe is without the threat of a new war.

There is only one sore spot—Silesia. Fighting is still in progress between Polish and German irregulars in Silesia, but the allies now are moving to restore peace by means of an international settlement and the possibility of war between Poland and Germany over disputed territory is now dead.

This survey does not take into consideration the industrial troubles in Great Britain and Italy, nor the communist agitations outside of Russia. It is meant to convey the idea that the relations the powers are drawing nearer the pre-war basis.

M'GANNON PERJURY TRIAL TAKES DRAMATIC TURN; CHARGES FLUNG

Preparations Are Going Forward To Hear Contempt Charges.

Cleveland, O., June 1.—Events crowded each other with dramatic haste late yesterday in the case of William M. McGannon under indictment on a perjury charge growing out of his testimony at the three Kacy murder trials.

Scarcely had the jury returned from a view of the scene of the events of the night of May 7 and the morning of May 8 when Harold Kacy was shot last year, when Attorney William H. Boyd, McGannon's counsel, informed Florence E. Allen, that he had received information affecting the fairness of the jury and its capacity to impartially try the issues at stake.

He then offered the testimony of two women, Miss Catherine O'Donnell and Miss Martina Wallace, that Mrs. Laura Miller one of the jurors impaneled in the present hearing, had told them previously to being summoned as a venireman that McGannon was not fit to try anybody.

Judge Allen, after hearing the witnesses discharged the jury and directed that the case be set down again for hearing on June 9 without prejudice to the interests of the state.

Meanwhile preparations are going ahead to hear the contempt charges before Judge Homer G. Powell tomorrow, the defendants in this hearing William H. McGannon, A. A. Cartwright, his former junior counsel, Charles E. A. Burke and Edward J. Allen.

The alleged contempt consisted, according to the state's claim, in inducing Mary E. Neely to falsely change her testimony at the second McGannon trial.

OVER MILLION ARE IDLE AFTER STRIKE CALLED IN ITALY

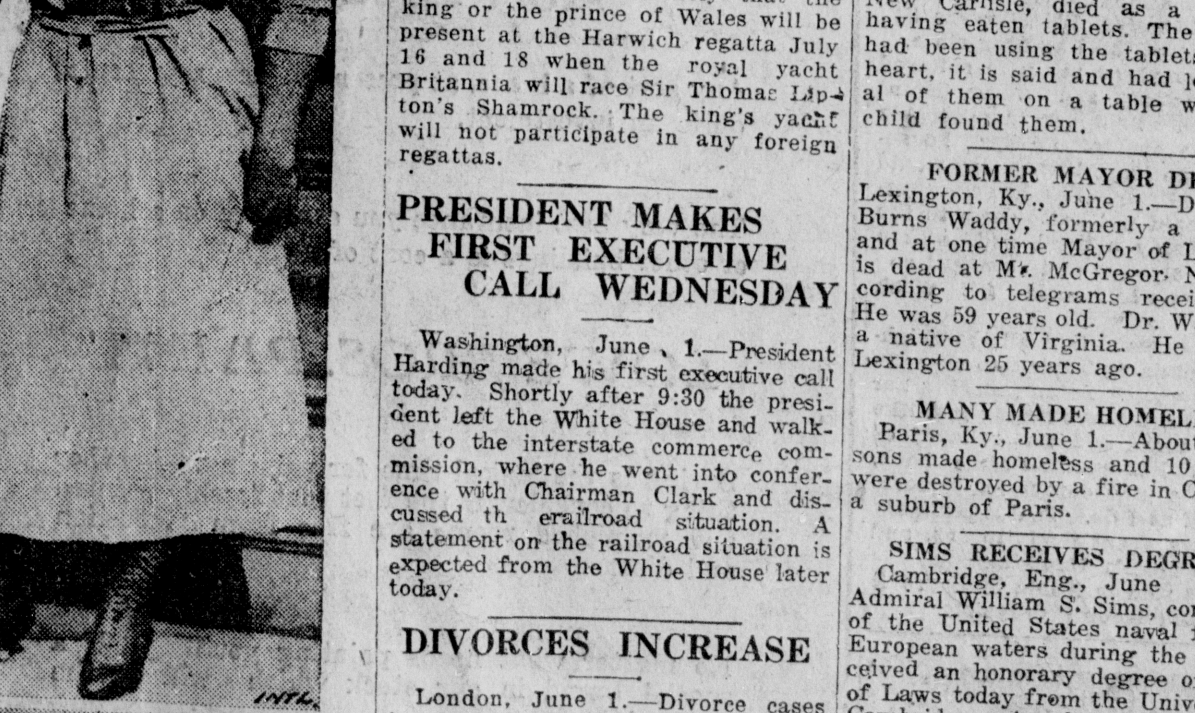

Government Employees Quit Work Following Wage Dispute.

Milan, June 1.—More than one million persons were idle at Rome and elsewhere in Italy today as a result of the strike called last night by government employees, whose demand for a wage increase of $40 monthly was rejected. Some non-government workers quit in sympathy.

An attempt is being made to have the railway men go out on a sympathetic strike, but they have not yet taken any definite decision in the matter. The government's refusal to grant a wage increase to the employees of the various departments was announced after several days deliberation. The clerks occupied the offices, but refused to do any work. The teachers in the schools which are under government supervision, deserted their desks.

No serious disorders had been reported up to the time this dispatch was written.

ARE HER SOCKS IMPROPER?

Is it improper for a fourteen-year old girl to wear socks?

That is the question which was raised in Cincinnati the other day when the little girl shown in the above photo was sent home from school by the principal with the order to don full length hose. The action aroused the attention of the other's club of the district and was taken up by the superintendent of schools, who decided that little girls may wear such hose to school provided they are not too large for their age. Now the question is is this fourteen year old girl too large for socks? Her mother says she isn't and her teacher and principle of the school say she is.

BRITISH WORKERS ABANDON EMBARGO ON FOREIGN COAL

London, June 1.—Foreign coal, much of it American, was again flowing into Great Britain today as a result of the decision of the railwaymen and the transport workers to lift the embargo. At a long conference of representatives of these two branches of the labor triple alliance last night, it was declared that the blockade against foreign coal should be abandoned at once, on the ground that it was "bad tactics." The embargo was imposed shortly after the national strike began on April 1, to help the miners.

RACE RIOTS IN OKLAHOMA TAKE TOLL OF LIVES

Five Whites Killed In Rioting Extending Over Tulsa.

STREETS PATROLLED

Trouble Starts Over Arrest Of Bootblack On Charge.

Tulsa, Okla., June 1.—After ten hours of race rioting extending all over the city five whites are known to be dead. There are no known negro fatalities, though the reports are that several were killed. Thousands of shots were fired during the rioting, crowds swarmed up and down the streets, brandishing weapons and great excitement prevailed.

The rioting grew out of the arrest of Dick Rowland, a negro bootblack on a charge of assaulting a white girl.

The city is patrolled by 50 automobiles filled with armed men, while 500 armed men with their centers on the Frisco railway station within stone's throw of an armed mob of 1,000 negroes form the nucleus of the gathering, white forces pushing into the black belt, setting fire to scores of houses and firing volleys, at houses where snipers were located. Reports reaching police headquarters this morning states that the deaths will mount higher than previous reports.

Two thousand or more negroes were reported walking out of town to the north where no armed whites are barring the way.

At 7:30 o'clock this morning the Tulsa hospitals reported they received one more dead white man and 30 injured and ambulances were coming in with injured whites in a steady stream.

Hundreds of autos early this morning were dashing through the streets, practically every one with one or more rifles sticking out of their sides.

STATE TROOPS ON GUARD TO PREVENT FURTHER RIOTING

Race Riots Break Out In Tulsa, Oklahoma—Three Killed.

Tulsa, Okla., June 1.—Although authorities believe the situation to be under control state troops and police were maintaining a vigilant guard here early today to prevent further outbreaks of race rioting. Three persons were killed and several wounded in riots, which began late last night after a negro had been arrested for an attack on a white girl.

Three units of state troops were called out by Adjutant General Chas. F. Barrett.

It is believed that the presence of the troops prevented an invasion of the negro district by whites early this morning. Rumors were afloat that such an invasion had been planned.

After the arrest of the negro, a crowd of negroes surrounded the jail. Rioting is said to have started when an officer stopped one of the negroes and took away his gun.

Throughout the night, and early today, armed whites and negroes marched through the streets. Clashes were frequent. It is believed that many of the casualties have not been reported.

Although the government's new proposals have been rejected by the miners there was a feeling of optimism that the coal strike will be settled within the next week.

LADY GLENCONNER SOON TO WED VISCOUNT GREY, LONDON REPORT

London.—Lady Glenconner, author, musician, once noted beauty and a six months' widow, is soon to become the bride of Viscount Grey of Falindon, according to a widely circulated rumor among their friends. Her first husband, Baron Glenconner, was a brother of Mrs. Asquith.

Lady Glenconner is a spiritualist, and in her latest book, "The Earthen Vessel," published in January of this year, tells of a spirit message she received from her son Edward, who was killed in the war. She writes that in one of the spirit messages sent her Edward referred her to page 27 of a book in the library of a country house. Looking up the volume she read on page 27 this message:

"What would I not give to be with you and comfort you, dearest mother." The famous medium, Mrs. Osborne Leonard, through whom the message came, had never been in the house mentioned. It is most unlikely that she knew of the existence of the book in the library.

"WEATHER DEFENSE" OF LINCOLN USED AGAIN EFFECTIVELY

Chicago.—The "weather defense" first made famous by Abraham Lincoln during the Emancipator's early law days won freedom here for Charles Keane, twenty-four, and William Casey, twenty-one, charged with robbery.

Lincoln defending a man charged with murder won an acquittal when he proved that prosecution witnesses testifying that the murder had been committed on a moonlight night were wrong. Lincoln read from an almanac showing that the night was cloudy.

"The moon was shining bright and we could easily see the features of the two robbers," two witnesses testified against Keane and Casey. "These two defendants were the robbers."

The jury looked upon the identification as complete. But Attorney Ernest Stout remembered Lincoln's feat. He read from the official weather reports for the Chicago district showing that it had snowed heavily throughout the night of the alleged robbery and that the moon was obscured. He also won an acquittal for his clients.

An appeal will be made to ex-service men, their wives, mothers, fathers and sweethearts to demand through the Government at Washington the surrender of Bergdollar. Neaf and Zimmer, the two Americans who went into Germany and attempted to kidnap the fugitive, will be proposed as honorary presidents of the club.

BEAUTY CHATS

A PRETTY CHIN
The first way in which a woman shows her age is in the line of her chin. When the chin line is no longer young the whole profile becomes mature or even middle-aged.

The first thing is a certain flabbiness of appearance. The chin line no longer runs clean and pure from the soft round curve of the chin itself into the throat. At first the line seems a little uneven, a little slack. After some months or some years, a very definite wrinkle appears just behind the chin and a small pouch of fat collects from this place and changes the entire line. If a woman becomes too stout one wrinkle will form behind another, so that instead of the slim line of youth she has a whole series of these fleshy pouches under the chin.

If she is too thin the flesh itself will wrinkle up and hang loosely where once it was properly elastic. If the chin is too stout this loose flesh should be rolled off by vigorous massage or sweated off by the use of hot cloths and oiled silk straps or rubber chin straps; or else it should be driven away by the frequent use of ice massages. A combination of all three is frequently used, in any case the ice or an equally good astringent should be employed to tighten the skin which has stretched to accommodate the extra flesh.

Meantime in order to keep the chin line young try the stretching exercise illustrated. Throw the head far back with the mouth open then close the mouth thus stretching and exercising, and thereby strengthening all the chin muscles.

Freckles.—Freckles are spots of iron which the sun brings to the surface. As this iron is in the blood there is no way to stop freckles from forming. They are not disfiguring as they go with the type that has them and nature makes no mistakes in its combinations. You can bleach them with lemon juice or the extract from cucumbers.

B. L. Electric blue should be very becoming to you and after that, the deeper shades of blue. All the shades of brown will also be becoming. Rose pink will also be a good choice.

S. M. D.—There are plenty of good creams on the market. Choose one that is made from vegetable oils and be sure there is no lanolin in it, as you are going to use it on the face. This is no important, that many people prefer to make their own cream, so they may be sure of having a fine combination of ingredients.

BEES RUN AMUCK OVER BALL PARK

Boston.—Five thousand baseball fans were in a fair way to get "stung" while watching a Sunday game on the Metropolitan Reservation and from all reports "it was not in the bag."

It was not that kind of a stinging according to several of the victims who were stung.

During the progress of the game a great swarm of bees descended upon the crowd and before Michael W. Barrett, well-known bee fancier could reach the scene and use his influence with the buzzing, angry, uninvited guests the crowd was thrown into a panic and several women and children had narrow escapes in avoiding automobiles while running with the throng.

The timely arrival of the bee king saved the day. Professor Bar-

DOES GREENE COUNTY WANT RED CROSS QUESTION WILL BE DECIDED THURSDAY

The combining of all branches of the Greene County Chapter of the American Red Cross with a unit of administration, is the purpose of a county conference of sixteen different township branches to be held at the Chamber of Commerce, Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock Xenia time.

Miss Hazel Hart, of Cleveland, field worker for the Lake Division of the Red Cross, who attended the meeting held here April 20, at which time, the pooling of funds, purposes and government, was the issue, is in this city now and will be present at the meeting. Mr. Reed of Cleveland, also a field worker, will talk on organization to the delegates present.

At the present time, the Greene County organization, although all in one chapter is divided into a number of branches, each branch keeping its own funds and operating independently of the others. According to the charter under which the local chapter operates, there must be one governing body and one fund. The Red Cross, it is pointed out, is responsible to the U. S. Government and it must have one governing body and one fund in a county.

At the meeting in April plans were discussed, among them the absolute separation of city and county, each to have its own organization. This plan did not meet with approval however, the branch representatives present favoring the pooling of the funds and the appointment of an administrative or executive board to govern the chapter, its personnel to include one representative from each branch.

A committee composed of the Rev. George C. Foltz of Bowersville the Rev. V. E. Busler of Cedarville and Dr. A. M. Patterson of this city was appointed to lay plans to put this system into effect, and will make a report at the meeting Thursday morning. The question of reorganization to comply with the terms of the Charter, will then be put to a vote and the result will be absolute in determining the policy of the organization in the future. In case the organization is effected, new officers of the Chapter will be elected immediately, the present officers having held over from November, when the election was supposed to have been held.

The central or executive committee planned under the program of united funds and effort, will be responsible directly to the Lake Division, according to the provisions of the Charter. The meeting is probably the most important in the history of the Greene County Chapter and much concerning the future of the organization here depends upon its outcome. The meeting Thursday morning will be open and all people in the county interested in welfare work are urged to attend.

MAN IS COMMITTED TO DAYTON STATE HOSPITAL FOR TIME

Frank Davis, alias Roy Staratt, giving three different addresses, two of which so far, have proven to be false, was committed to the Dayton State Hospital Tuesday by Probate Judge J. Carl Marshall, on state authority.

The mental condition of the man is believed to have resulted from a blow on the head, although a long gash on his head is said by Dr. Paul Espey, to be the clean incision of a surgeon's knife and not the result of a blow. A paper found in his pocket, signed by a physician and giving the cause of the affliction and advising an operation leads to the belief that he may have escaped from a hospital where he had undergone an operation while still mentally unbalanced.

The man came to the attention of authorities when he was in a spasm in the eastern end of the city, and was taken into custody by police. Because of his claims that he was an ex-soldier he was turned over to Miss Louise Shaffer, secretary of the Greene County Chapter of the Red Cross, who had him consigned to the Esney Hospital. Because of the violence of his actions, he had to be removed from the hospital and pending investigation was committed to the asylum.

Davis or Staratt, gave an Indianapolis, address, an address on Brown street in Dayton, and an address in Troy. The last two proved to be false, as there are no such addresses as those given. His statement that he had been a conductor on the Ohio Electric line between Dayton and Springfield and fell from his car alighting on his head several weeks ago is also false according to the information obtained.

GARY AND SCHWAB FORECAST A GREAT BOOM IN BUSINESS.

Captains of industry participated in a symposium of the country's financial future at the annual meeting of the Iron and Steel Institute at New York last Friday.

Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, declared that patience, courage and a fair disposition would bring satisfactory conditions in due time and that general conditions were slowly improving. Retail prices, he said, for many commodities are much too high.

Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the Bethlehem Steel Co., asserted this was a time for encouragement, a time to be hopeful, a time to be optimistic, and the country would come out all right.

James J. Campbell, president of the Youngstown Sheet Tube Co., endorsed Mr. Schwab's views, but pointed out that farmers must receive more or purchase less.

The meeting closed with a dinner and impromptu talks by members on business conditions.

"There is an abundance of new business," Mr. Gray said, "with both ability and inclination to place it, waiting for further adjustments which will put costs of living, selling prices, wage rates and other general incomes on a relative parity."

"Patience, courage and a fair disposition will bring satisfactory conditions in due time."

PULITZER PRIZES AWARDED.

The Boston Post's exposure of the Charles Ponzi scheme of quick wealth, by which hundreds of persons in Boston and elsewhere recently lost their savings, is considered by Columbia University the most disinterested and meritorious public service rendered by any American newspaper during the last year. Because of that the Pulitzer prize in journalism, a gold medal costing $500, has been awarded to that newspaper.

Other Pulitzer prize awards announced, include $1000 to Louis Seibold for his interview with former President Wilson, published in the New York World last June. The requirements for winning that prize are strict accuracy, terseness and the accomplishment of some public good commanding public attention and respect.

One thousand dollars was awarded Edith Wharton for her novel "The Age of Innocence," which the prize committee considered the best American novel published during the year, presenting the wholesome atmosphere of American life and the highest standards of American manners and manhood.

For the original American play, performed in New York, which best presents the educational value and power of the stage in raising the standing of good morals, good taste and good manners, $1000 was awarded to "Miss Lulu Bett," by Zona Gale.

For the best book of the year on the history of the United States a prize of $2000 was awarded "The Victory at Sea," by Rear Admiral William Sowden Sims, in collaboration with Burton J. Hendrick.

"The Americanization of Edward Bok," by Edward Bok, was given a prize of $1000 as the best American biography teaching patriotic and unselfish service to the Nation and at the same time illustrating an eminent example.

The Pulitzer prizes were established by the will of the late Joseph Pulitzer, one of the foremost figures in American journalism, and were intended to inspire writers to perform, through their works, services of the greatest possible public good.

HAYS TO HUMANIZE THE POSTAL SERVICE.

By Will H. Hays, Postmaster General of the United States, in the Outlook.

"To make the postal service a real service to the public the postal management and the postal workers must first start to serve each other. That's why I want to know the workers and why I want them to know me. I must know their problems and they must know mine. Then we together will know how to serve the public and then the public will help."

"I am not afraid of any man or organization who wants to work, and these boys want to work. If you can get a hold of a man's hand look him in the eye, sit down and talk things over with him, and then say a few words of encouragement, you need never fear; that man is just going to work his head off with you."

"First. To make such rectifications as in all decency and fairness must be made to assure a square deal."

"Second. To strengthen and broaden the civil service at every point wherever possible to the end that merit may govern."

"Third. With absolute fidelity to put the entire service upon a purely business basis so sound and so serviceable that no political party will ever again dare attempt to ignore or evade it ultimately."

"We are going to deal the same way with those outside the service who have complaints against it. We are going to deal with them the same way we deal with those inside."

"We are going to get the same just consideration for the postal worker. Co-operation outside and inside the service."

SMETHING THEY DIDN'T FIGURE ON

1901--Twenty Years Ago--1921

One of the many weddings that has been announced for this month will be that of Mr. Frank Owens, a popular young man of the West End and Miss Rose Kearney. Both the young people are well known, and their many Xenia friends will extend congratulations on the approaching happy event.

Several teams are at work hauling the broken stone from the court house and it is being placed on Columbus avenue between Third Street and the railroad. The street there has always been in bad shape and the placing of the stone will greatly improve it.

A grand auction sale of building lots in Galloway Park will be held June 8. Galloway Park is at the head of Galloway Street and the north side of the electric road, and was formerly a part of Fairview. The platting has been changed and three streets are now being graded through it, dividing it into 44 large lots.

Subcontracts for the construction of the line between Springfield and Xenia will be let within the next two weeks. The work will be pushed at the Springfield end, as fast as possible, and it is expected that the road will be constructed and in operation by early fall.

The dog poisoner has been abroad on Spring Hill and persons who are the possessors of dogs, are guarding them carefully. Yesterday morning there were seven of the dead animals on the hill.

A WATCHDOG FOR ECONOMY

1½ Cents
A Hostage
Big Advantage
Salesman's Bills
On the Contrary

AN EDITORIAL ON ADVERTISING

It is real economy to buy advertised goods.

At first glance it would seem that the advertisement is paid for by the consumer—that if 1 1-2 cents is spent to advertise every package of a certain product, that an extra 1 1-2 cents will be added to the selling price.

On the contrary!

The advertising results in such enormous sales of advertised goods that the manufacturer is able to buy his material at a big advantage over the non-advertiser and is able to use up to date production methods on a large scale.

Thus he reduces the cost of manufacture of each unit sold.

This more than absorbs the 1 1-2 cents—or whatever it may be—that it costs per package for advertising.

Similarly with his selling and merchandising organization he is able to sell a much larger volume of goods at the same or lower cost than is possible for a non-advertiser.

The same salesman who sells advertised goods in large quantities would have difficulty disposing of a much smaller quantity of non-advertised goods, yet his bills for railroad fare, hotel, salary and other expenses would be exactly the same.

Therefore, when you buy an advertised product you may be sure that it has been manufactured and merchandised on the most economical possible basis—that the cost of advertising has not in any way been added to the cost which you pay—and that you are certain to get the best goods, because it is vitally necessary to the manufacturer that he retain your good will.

If the manufacturer who makes an article and the merchant who sells it to you cannot depend upon you to come back for more of the same article, neither will gain by the first sale.

The advertiser has, in fact, given a hostage to the public—the hostage is his good name. If the goods do not live up to it he forfeits his hostage and loses your trade.

Is not that worth thinking over the next time you are undecided whether you will buy something that is advertised or something that is not advertised?

Advertising is economic. It benefits both the buyer and seller. It works to mutual advantage, otherwise it would have perished. And because this is true it may pay you to read advertising closely and constantly—carefully and continuously.

Is It Yours?

THIS IS THE BIRTHDAY OF BRIGHAM YOUNG
June 1st, 1801

It is hard to determine in which capacity Brigham Young excelled—that of religious leader, politician, or business man. When one reads the story of his life carefully the most vivid impression is that he must have been one of the shrewdest business men of his time.

He was the second President of the "Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints," otherwise known as the Mormons and one of the founders of that society as well as the founder of the State of Utah. Brigham Young was born in Vermont of a poor family unable to give him much education. He married when he was a young man and was left a widower after seven years.

He was a very young man when he and his brother first heard of Mormonism. He became converted immediately and as he was shrewd and eloquent he soon became leader of the new cult. New England was anything but friendly toward a religion which claimed among other things that a woman's soul could only be saved if she were married, and that the more wives a man took unto himself the more of a saint he automatically became.

The Mormons went West with Young at their head. They thought of settling in Missouri, but Missouri would have none of them. Always travelling on foot they finally reached the valley with the curious salty lake in it where they settled, and where Young founded the State of Utah. Utah and Young both prospered. He laid the foundations of a great state.

He also had 17 wives and 56 children and lived with the whole lot in one house.

THE MARKET BASKET

It is well to have desserts even if it is necessary to keep down your food costs. For they add to the meal certain, necessary elements, besides making a pleasant finish to it.

And also, where there are children, clearing away the dishes of the former course and serving a dessert on a pretty plate—even though it is the simplest dessert imaginable—helps the child form the gracious manners of well-bred individuals.

Vary With Meals.

Generally speaking, desserts should be light, although they must vary with the character of the meal at which they are served.

In the average household there are but two courses, the main or meat course and the dessert. If the main part of the meal is meatless or rather light, the sustenance needed may be gained by eating a dessert which has eggs and milk as the foundation.

A Plea for Pie

We hear much about the deleterious effects of pie, but I have always been a rank disbeliever. How a flaky pie crust, holding up a custard or some well-cooked fruit can be harmful it is very hard for me to understand, especially as my grandmother who at 94 manages the affairs of her house and her farm considers pie an attractive addition to breakfast, and in my own home, although we have gotten away from the breakfast habits of our pioneer ancestors, pie is a favorite dessert, served two or more times a week. In both cases any form of indigestion is practically non-existent.

The Steamed Pudding

Steamed suet puddings are heavier and a little too large a portion can give one a sense of uncomfortable dullness. Still, on a cold day, a small piece with a good hard sauce is one of the most satisfying desserts. With the coming of Summer they should be dispensed with; our appetite as well as our common sense tells us this.

A little whipped cream makes a tempting dessert to any canned or fresh fruit. Whipped cream is not as expensive as it sounds as a little goes a long way, and it is one of the best of foods. Fruit whips are made by mashing any fruit uncooked if hard like apples—and if desired beating in the beaten white of an egg. Served in tall stemmed glasses with a bit of jelly, it is as attractive and delicious as it is inexpensive.

Rice Puddings

Bolled rice is the basis of many attractive and healthful desserts. Molded plain or mixed with cream and the stiffly beaten white of an egg and molded, topped with shredded fruit, and a little fruit syrup poured over the whole, it is palatable and sightly. Do not use too much rice. Rice pudding with raisins has too long been a popular dessert to need any more than mention here.

Short biscuit dough, baked, split buttered and filled with fruit makes the individual shortcake. For me this makes the best of all strawberry shortcakes. The sweet egg cakes so often used detract too much from the fragrance and flavor of the berry.

For growing children bread and cereal puddings, custards and blanc manges are the most desirable forms of dessert, as they combine both high food value with ease of digestion.

Practical Business Talks

WHAT IS EFFICIENCY?

Ed. Howe, the philosopher of Atchinson, Kansas, says that efficiency is just another name for old-fashioned hard work.

It's a good epigram but the fact is that efficiency is the easiest way of doing anything and doing it well.

No matter how well a thing is being done, there is always a short-cut, a better way, a way to eliminate lost motion and save the duplication of effort.

The first law of efficiency is orderliness. Have a place for everything—and everything in its place. See that that place does not interfere with anything else—whether it be a nook for the broom where no one will fall over it, or a stock well-arranged so articles can be found instantly without irritating a customer by the delay incident to search.

The second law of efficiency is cleanliness. A clean job never was produced in a dirty plant. A dirty store-front is no more inviting than a dirty collar or face. Lights, paint and polish are to a merchandising establishment and its customers what sugar is to flies.

The third law of efficiency is hard work. There may have been merchants and clerks and others who succeeded without hard work, but they are in the infinitely small minority. Your employer will gladly tell you about the struggles of his early days. And it should inspire you to greater effort.

The fourth law of efficiency is loyalty. The soldier's success depends on the success of his army. And no army can win its battle when its ranks are honeycombed with grumbling, dissatisfaction and unjust resentment. So it goes with business. If some other concern looks better to you, quit your job, go work for it.

The fifth law of efficiency is service. This means a willingness to do your best to help make the world happier and easier running, on the idea that you will inspire others to do likewise, the whole making it a better world to live in. Service further implies and requires promptness, pleasantness, a policy of not putting it off until tomorrow.

Orderliness, cleanliness, hard work, loyalty and service—these are the elements of success, prosperity and independence.

TEDIOUS TOPICS.

There are so many cheerful matters of which a man may tell and sing I wonder why a fellow chatters about the grim and grisly thing. I wander daily by the ocean, the wondrous ocean, vast and blue; it fills me with a high emotion, I want to talk about the view. And there are always people sitting on chairs and benches near the shore; old ladies with their endless knitting, old gents who find this life a bore. And they inhale the salty breezes, and they experience no thrills; they talk all day of their diseases, of warts and corns and liver pills. I turn to them at times, and, thunder, "Forget your ringbones for a day! Admire with me this glowing wonder, this sea that rolls from far Cathay. Oh, think of distant isles of coral, of lofty palm and banyan tree! To talk of goitre is unmoral when you behold this shining sea!" They look at me with grins sarcastic, and talk again of purple pills; they speak of operations drastic they've undergone, for divers ills. I have my share of dread diseases, they all are fatal, more or less, but when I breathe the ocean breezes forgotten is my form's distress. When Ocean busy as a beaver, chants forth its pean, grand and rich, I cannot think of chills and fever, of gout and mumps and barber's itch.

SUBMARINE ARMADA TO BE GREATEST WEAPON IN NEXT WAR IT IS BELIEVED

Washington.—The next war may see great submarine battles with armadas of U-boats fighting beneath the surface of the sea.

This is broadly hinted at by Simon Lake, inventor of the submarine, in a communication addressed to members of the Senate, urging a broad extension of the submarine building programme for the United States. Lake disclosed that there are plans now on file in the secret archives of the United States Navy for warfare by submarines against enemy submarines.

"The submarine has not yet reached its full development," said Lake. "There are other features that may be added to further their effectiveness and increase the scope of their usefulness."

"In my humble judgment it is the only weapon that can be safely relied upon to keep foreign fleets from our shore. Every other weapon is visible and can be met with another of its kind; the submarine is invisible, and if made noiseless and provided with noiseless and invisible automobile torpedoes or with proper mine-planting facilities, no other type of ship that floats on the sea, or in the air can meet it on equal terms. The cost of the submarine is slight compared with other vessels. Did the six hundred millions spent on aircraft get a single German submarine? No. According to official reports, the best defense against the German submarine was other submarines. As soon as war was declared between our country and Germany I sent several plans to our Navy Department as well as to some English naval friend. I outlined how submarines could be used for a defense against attacking enemy submarines. Some of these plans were later put into practice. They proved effective but if they had been fully carried out the loss of ships near the English coast would have been very greatly reduced. These plans, I presume are still on file in the secret archives of the Navy Department where they may remain without further discussion, so far as I am concerned."

U-Boats Undeclared

Lake firmly believed that the German U-boats were not beaten in the World War.

"Many people think the submarine was mastered and driven from the sea," Lake declared. "Hundreds of millions were expended and lost on barages and large fleets of trawlers, submarine chasers and other ships to offset the sinkings caused by these German submarines and the submarines captured by these vessels were only one of two disabled submarines and these sunk were insignificant in number and cost in comparison to the surface ships lost. England lost ships, cargoes and men without number. Untold fortunes paid tribute to the awful power of destruction of the submarine."

"In spite of the expenditures of billions on destroyers, submarine chasers, mines, airplanes and barages the submarine continued to infest the seas."

"The strategy of war made it good tactics to claim destruction of submarines in unlimited numbers, but the war history records no such events as were claimed during hostilities. Much has been made of the fact that no American transports and troopships were sunk by submarines. The writer understands that history records that the Germans felt it better not to sink American troopships and saw her error in thinking that she could conquer the world through frightfulness."

"America Was Spared"

"To quote the statements of one high American naval officer who was active overseas, "Germany decided it was bad policy to sink any of our troopships, as that would further alienate us when it came time to make peace and resume trade relations so the orders went out to spare American troopships; in other words as this officer stated, "They could have sunk our ships if they wished, but they had lost their guts and did not have the nerve to carry out their former programme of frightfulness. According to the Bridgeport Telegram of April 23, 1921, Admiral Sims said: "If Admiral Von Tirpitz had had his way in the high councils of Germany we would all be speaking German with a decided New England accent" and he also said he "believed airplanes and submarines would be the master weapons in future wars."

WHETHER BOBBED OR NOT YOU'LL LIKE THIS RIBBON CAP FOR DANCING WEAR

This quaint and charming little cap, which fits closely to the head, is designed for wear to the formal summer dances. It is fashioned of net with many loops of picoted edged ribbon completely hiding the net. Streamers of the ribbon fall coyly at one side. Such a little cap or bonnet is strangely suggestive of olden days and is quite in keeping with the new dancing frocks with their tight little bodices and full skirts. The nice thing about it is that either the girl with bobbed hair or the girl who knots her hair on the back of her head can wear those little caps. They are becoming and they keep one's hair in place, which is a hard thing to do on a warm summer's night when dancing on a hotel veranda or perhaps on a yacht.

To Make Rich Red Blood

Revitalize your worn-out exhausted nerves and increase your strength and endurance

Take Organic Iron; not metallic iron which people usually take, but pure organic iron—Nuxated Iron—which is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. One dose of Nuxated Iron is estimated to be approximately equivalent (in organic iron content) to eating one-half quart of spinach, one quart of green vegetables or half a dozen apples. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat. Nuxated Iron is partially predigested and ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood, while metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron filings.

Over 4,000,000 people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. A few doses will often commence to enrich your blood. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain satisfactory results.

Beware of substitutes. Always insist on having genuine organic iron—Nuxated Iron. Look for the letters N. I. on every tablet. Sold by all druggists.

A TALK TO BEGINNERS

If I were a beginning golfer, there are just a few things I would do, and I would let all details come under the word practice. While practicing, one can discover for himself many little golden rules that may not be precisely applicable to the other man's game but will suit yours exactly. These are the few instructions I would give to the golfer just starting:

Learn to grip the club in the fingers, never in the palm. Use square stance for full shots; open for half and shorter. Learn to let your club head form its right angle with its imaginary line, so that neither heel nor toe is off the ground. In swinging, make the descent and ascent the same on both grawing back and follow through. Cultivate the Forward Press.

If you begin with these rules you are bound to make progress; but I add one more, and that is Practice.

Furthermore, it will give me great pleasure to explain fully any point in these rules that a reader does not understand.

There is no doubt that very many golfers are without access to competent instruction and for that reason many prospectively good golfers are spoiled at the outset.

Friends are usually generous with advice but most of this is singularly unreliable and as a result the wrong sort of foundation is laid. The best way to start the game is with a good professional but his services cannot always be obtained.

Public links golfers have no chance as a rule for instruction, and even men in private clubs suffer in the same manner, not being able to get the service of the "pro" at the time when they can spare time from business.

Golf books of instruction are full of detail, all right in itself but confusing and discouraging for the beginner. Personally I think there is too much detail in all instructions, because correct detail must differ with every individual. All the great players have the same big general ideas, but in detail each has a some what different swing. Therefore it is well to remember that just as your physique differs from the other fellows so must your swing differ from his.

Questions and Answers:

Gloves and Golf

Do you think it helps to wear gloves while playing golf? Answer—Gloves should not be worn. One of the most important things in golf is the "feel" of your clubs. With gloves on your hand, this vital sense of touch is lost and your game suffers accordingly. The player who grips his clubs rightly will seldom develop callouses and therefore, there is no need of gloves anyway.

SOVIETISM IS NOW ANCHORED IN SOUL OF THE RUSSIAN

Paris. —The United States, by taking the lead among the great world powers, can save Russia from utter ruin. But she cannot do it by attacking the Soviet system or by supporting counter revolutionary armies attempting to upset Lenin and Trotsky.

This declaration was made in an interview today by General Ignatieff, Russian military attaché to France during the war, and the one outstanding figure in the group of Russians who remained in Paris after the Lenin revolution. Ignatieff, though a former Czarist officer, has steadfastly opposed all schemes to overthrow the present Moscow Government by military force. He has refused to hand over to the Kolchak, Denikin and Wrangel armies any part of the funds entrusted to his care for buying war materials in France, or to take any part in the deliberations of exiled Russian nobles, though he himself is a member of the Russian nobility.

"Sovietism is anchored in the soul of Russia," said General Ignatieff. "When Americans and Frenchmen and Englishmen come to understand that they will understand what folly it is to try to beat Lenin and Trotsky from the outside. Foreigners confuse Soviets with Bolshevism, Communism and even free love, and make them all the target of one shaft of reprobation. They think that the best way of bringing down the Moscow Government is to support these counter-revolutionaries, which only exasperate the Russian people, jealous of the liberty they won at such a cost."

Phantom of Communism.

"Soviet, in Russian, means council. The first revolutionary societies were local representatives of different professions. Sovietism is nothing but the same professional representation adopted by republican governments everywhere. Communism originated in Russia as the result of the profound misery of the people and because of foreign persecution."

"If foreign governments want to save Russia let them stop persecuting her. Let them give to Russia the means of production and the phantom of communism will disappear of itself. America, perhaps aided by France alone, could provide these means and assure the economic revival of Russia."

"The question of individuals counts for nothing. Lenin and Zinovieff know very well that they are not going to revolutionize old Europe or the young United States. They do not ignore the fact that for the Russian people the one vital question is the agricultural question. They know perfectly well that communism will not solve that. Sooner or later they must seek a compromise. The Russian peasant wants the land which he cultivates with the right to dispose of it as he pleases, to sell it or leave it to his heirs. It is impossible to react against this profound instinct of the race."

Agrarian Problem Uppermost

"In my mind the return of the Russian lands, now nationalized to the peasants would solve the agrarian problem in its entirety. The United States and France could assist in the process of revival, and perhaps France could obtain pledges in land for the payment of the debt owed her by the old Russian Government, and in that way the peace of Europe would be nearly restored."

"Russia has failed, financially. That is quite clear. But she remains an excellent business proposition. The renewal of economic relations between London, Berlin and Moscow, though it indicates a desire on the part of England and Germany not to lose the Russian market, really means nothing. Russia has no way of paying for products from these countries. The only solution is to find a way of opening conversations with the Soviets and it should be the business of the United States and of other countries to step forward with concrete propositions."

REDUCTIONS OF FIRE HAZARDS IN XENIA, ADDITIONAL WATER SUPPLY AND NEW BUILDING CODE RECOMMENDED TO CITY

Open Forum Meeting at C. Of C. Tuesday Night Held To Acquaint Citizens With Needs for Low Fire Insurance Classification.

HIGH POINTS ON INSURANCE RATE QUESTION BROUGHT OUT IN CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEETING TUESDAY NIGHT.

- 1—Inspection of the Ohio Insurance Bureau in 1914, showed the city water supply had a pumping capacity of 5 1-4 million gallons of water a day; the plant deteriorated however, until before the new supply was installed they only pumped one million and a half gallons. An inspection made a year ago, would have raised the classification to five or six points.
- 2—Ohio Insurance Bureau endorses plans of the city in connection with increasing the supply and pressure of water, through the addition of the new unit at the Old Town plant, which will be installed within 20 days, and the installation of the automatic power unit at the Cincinnati avenue station. The water situation will then be satisfactory.
- 3—The Bureau suggests the painting of all police and fire alarm boxes with a red stripe around the pole on which they are placed and the proper lettering of the boxes with the words "police and fire." This suggestion is in the course of being carried out, many of the boxes already being painted.
- 4—The Bureau suggests the addition of one fireman to the Department, which has already been carried out; the plan of taking more hose to all fires, which is being carried out with the ruling that both trucks go to every fire; the suggestion that five sleepers in addition to the regular firemen be kept at the engine house, which is also being carried out.
- 5—The Bureau suggests the establishment of a building code, regulating the erection of new and the reconstruction of old buildings, and the abolishment of fire hazards.
- 6—The following out by the administration of these recommendations will meet with the approval of the city, and will tend to greatly reduce the rates over what they would have been had the inspection been made before the new water supply was developed.

An explanation of the purpose and functions of the Ohio Insurance Bureau, recommendations to citizens and city officials for the reduction of fire hazards and suggestions, which followed, will tend to keep this city in a low fire insurance classification, were given by H. J. Manning, engineer, and Chief W. S. Winard of the Inspection Bureau, in talks before the meeting of business men in the Chamber of Commerce, Tuesday night.

The meeting was arranged as a forum by the Chamber of Commerce, and through questions propounded to the insurance officials, a comprehensive idea of what qualifications this city must meet, in order to keep a low classification, was brought out. The speakers intimated that the consummation of these suggestions will mean that this city's rates will be kept at a comparatively low figure.

The meeting was in charge of H. A. Higgins, chairman of the forum committee of the Chamber of Commerce, who introduced Mr. Manning. The engineer made two inspections of conditions in this city, and from the information obtained presented a paper on the situation here that explained the rate question that has been bothering citizens and officials for some time.

Last Rating in 1914.

Mr. Manning said in part, "The last general inspection and rating of Xenia was made in 1914. At that time, on account of its rather unusual facilities for a city of its size, it was granted a classification which was considerably better than that enjoyed by similar communities, in fact there being few such in the state holding as good classification. The city has been enjoying this class since that time. In the meantime our methods of classification have been considerably changed and we have for the past year and a half been applying to all cities throughout the state, as rapidly as possible, what is known as the National Board Point Grading Schedule. This schedule is much more comprehensive than our old system of grading, which although crude in comparison, gave us a fair degree of uniformity, and this system is now being generally used throughout the central western states. Before being finally put into effect it was applied experimentally by the National Board of Fire Underwriters to some 300 towns located in all parts of the country. This system we feel gives each municipality an even break with its neighbor. It is based on a system of points of deficiency and we are able to take practically any feature, which has any bearing whatsoever upon a city's fire protection as a whole and let what their laxity or otherwise in regard to that particular feature may be costing them in number of points, the sum total of which amount to determine the final classification upon which their individual insurance rates are based."

Furnished 5 1-4 Million Gallons.

The engineer explained that in 1914 at the time of the last inspection, two steam plants were furnishing a total of 5 1-4 million gallons of water a day, from two separate sources, a supply considered unusually good, while at the present time instead of two stations, the city has one station, with a capacity of only two million gallons a day, and depending upon a single transmission line.

The quantity of water in the stand-pipe, said the engineer, would be quickly exhausted in case of a fire, as the pumps would not supply the demand, while further danger is occasioned by the liability of a break in the single transmission line.

"The engineer who designed your plant was a very competent man and you may rest assured that there was no one who was better qualified to give you the benefit of the money expended," said Mr. Manning concerning Philip Burgess, the designing engineer. "From information now available it appears that the retired plant were in very poor condition during their final days of operation and that the water supply was exceedingly limited, being considerably less than the amount now obtainable from the new station; therefore without going back we can readily understand the feeling that most of you gentlemen may have at the present time. To make the matter entirely clear I will again state that the former classification as far as the water works was concerned was not based on conditions that might have existed in 1919 or 1920, but was based on those existing as far back as 1914."

Referring to the fire department, the engineer said that the institution of the two platoon system here as required by state law, had reduced the effective force on duty each day to about 50 per cent of what it was when the previous inspection was made, and that only one piece of fire apparatus

POLLY MISSING FROM HOME

Has any one seen anything of a perfectly respectable, green parrot frolicking about the northern section of the city?

Mrs. O. M. Lees of the Interurban restaurant, is the possessor of this gay bird, and the cause for the question is that "Polly" grew tired of the rear yard of the Lees home, where he is allowed short freedom every day, and flew to the top branch of a high tree.

The last seen of the bird, he was sitting perched high in a tree on North Galloway street, Tuesday afternoon slyly chuckling that at last his day of freedom had come.

Any one who can induce "Polly" to return home will be rewarded, is the statement of Mrs. Lees, the owner of the lost bird.

talk classification but you are apt to find that the owner of the building has a condition which causes him to pay many times more than the change in the classification would. The change might add four or five cents to his rate when a condition might add 40 or 50 cents. Yet he will want to spend several thousands of dollars of the city's money to get their four or five cents off, when he could spend $10 himself and get the 50 cents taken off."

Mr. Winard, who was for 28 years a member of the Columbus Fire Department, said that fire prevention was worth more than fighting the fire afterward. It is the intention to make the Bureau more active in fire prevention than it has ever been in the past, he said. The standardization of fire equipment, threads, hose and couplings so that departments from other cities can render aid, is one means of this he said. The Bureau of Weights and Measures has fixed a standard thread which will be put in effect soon. He urged also that firemen acquaint themselves with the interior of every building in the city, in order to aid them in fighting fire.

City Auditor Zell, acting manager, said that the City Commission wants to do all in its power, to carry out the suggestions of the Bureau representatives in keeping the classification down. He said that the new unit for the Old Town water plant would be installed within 20 days, and that the auxiliary station on Cincinnati Avenue, approved by the Bureau, would be installed as quickly as possible, which will give the city a capacity of 3,000,000 gallons of water daily.

To Carry Out Plan.

Mr. Zell said that the recommendation of one more man on the fire department would be carried out immediately, with the suggestion also of carrying more hose to each fire, both trucks being taken out in the future. He said this was the hardest recommendation to follow because of the state of the city's finances, which have been pressing, despite the fact that the city has been able to operate within its income, without issuing deficiency bonds, on the same income it had back in 1914.

GIVE GREATEST CREDIT

In referring to the elimination of hazards, the speaker said: "Strange as it may seem it is not always the improvements which cost the most money that always give the greatest credit. A city is frequently placed in a poorer class than it otherwise would be for its laxity in supervising building operations and elimination of existing hazards. Xenia comes in for her share of criticism on this point. A city of its size should have adopted a suitable building code a number of years ago, since it has not buildings of all types, of shapes and sizes have been allowed to be erected and to be occupied for any purpose which the owners themselves saw fit. According to our inspectors who recently finished their inspection work rates on practically all buildings in one entire block were materially increased by the fact that a large frame garage was allowed to be erected which on account of its occupancy and structure endangers all surrounding property. Suitable, well-enforced restrictions would have prevented it. You gentlemen as buyers of insurance are no doubt paying out hundreds of dollars additional premiums each year simply due to the fact that your wiring was installed and put in service without being given proper inspection. The usual charge for defective wiring is five cents a hundred or 50 cents a thousand and although I have not had an opportunity to take up this matter I presume that at least 75 per cent or more of all buildings carry this extra charge. You are no doubt paying for other conditions which might have been eliminated by adequate building inspection work on the part of the Fire Department. In other words an individual generally has more to do with the making of his own rate than any one else. The engineer said that plans of the administration regarding the water works would take care of the difficulty in that department. These plans include the installation of the second power unit at the Springfield Pike station, which was ordered some time ago, and the installation of an automatic system at the Cincinnati Avenue station with a separate source of power supply. Approval of these plans was given by the Bureau some time ago, and their consummation will give the city a three million gallon a day supply, which according to the Bureau representatives, will be sufficient."

DID NOT HAVE WATER.

City Commissioner C. S. Frazier, said that the inspectors who inspected the local situation in 1914 may have been correct in the statement that this city had a pumping capacity of 5 1-4 million gallons a day "if we had the water, but we did not have the water," he said. Mr. Manning admitted that the city will have a much better rating with the new system than it would have had with the old system, provided an inspection had been made before the new supply was obtained, as the old plants had deteriorated since 1914, until they were not as good as the single new supply. He commended the auxiliary plant of the Dayton Power and Light Company here, and said that "the chances are very remote that both supplies would give out at the same time."

"The building code will help classification," said the engineer. "Some people get scared to death when you

Healthful Kidneys A Summer Comfort

Sufferers from any form of kidney trouble endure more misery in the heated season of the year than at any other time. When the kidneys are acting properly the perspiration is normal and Nature keeps the body at an even heat regardless of weather. Healthy action of the kidneys depends upon a constant free supply of nervous impulses. The cause of kidney disease is disturbance of the alignment of spinal joints, causing pressure at "kidney place" upon spinal nerves to the kidneys. Usually kidney sufferers are conscious of pain or tenderness at this point. Chiropractic spinal adjustments restore the alignment, and remove the cause of the disease.

HAD BRIGHT'S DISEASE AND WAS GIVEN UP

"I was advised that I had Bright's Disease of the kidneys and was under the care of two physicians who said that I would die. On January 14, I began taking chiropractic spinal adjustments. Under continuous adjustments in April I was well. The dizziness, the pain in my head, the swelling-over my body, and the constant pain over my kidneys are all gone. I cannot say too much in praise for chiropractic."—G. W. Maness, Chiropractic Research Bureau, Statement No. 12651A.

HUNGARIAN NOBLES FORCED TO LABOR

Budapest.—Members of the old Hungarian aristocracy and writers and painters of note have been hard hit by the increase in cost of living and the reversal of that has swept away their fortunes during and since the war.

Count Karl Majlath has opened an office in Budapest where he deals in foreign exchange. Prince Karl de Hohenlohe and Prince Ludovic Windischgratz are conducting a brokerage business. Count Albert Apponyi is writing newspaper articles for a living and the widow of Lieut. Field Marshal Perry, who was assassinated by Communists has just been granted a court order to sell her household furniture on her plea that she needs the money for food.

Emile Markus, the greatest modern Hungarian tragedienne, is auctioning off her art treasures, including a Gobelin tapestry of great value which once adorned the throne of King Mathias, Edith Matrai, wife of a famous painter has opened a store for the sale of children's clothes.

COUNTY INFIRMARY INMATE DIES

Mrs. Witham who was 93 years of age at the time of her death was married four times. A niece and nephew, Mrs. Harry Hunt of Spring Valley and Henry Hunt of Dayton, are the nearest surviving relatives. The body will be taken to Spring Valley Thursday, where interment will be made.

DAYLIGHT SAVING PLAN CONSIDERED

Piqua, June 1.—Manufacturers of the city are considering a plan for daylight saving by asking their employees to come to work one hour earlier in the morning and leaving an hour earlier in the afternoon. This is to be done without changing the clocks but will amount to practically the same thing.

This extra hour in the evening will give the workers an added hour for recreation for caring for their gardens or other activities, and will prove of benefit to them as well as to the manufacturers.

Although definite plans are not completed and the list of those agreeable to the arrangement is still incomplete, a final report is expected early next week from those promoting the project.

RATES TO BE REVISED.

Washington, June 1.—The interstate commerce commission is now engaged in revision of railroad freight rates through a process of voluntary reduction by concerted action on the part of the carriers. President Harding was informed today when he made an unexpected personal call at the office of the commission and discussed conditions with the members.

"When I am introducing my sister should I mention her last name?" asked Kate.

"Yes it will avoid confusion. Sometimes one's sister is married or a half sister and the omission of the last name causes great many mistakes," was the reply.

"If you were to be married in a traveling suit, is it proper to have a bridesmaid?" inquired Marjorie.

"Yes, it is perfectly proper to have an attendant when you are married in a suit. More than one bridesmaid, however, is not correct," said her mother.

BRIDESMAIDS' GOWNS

And now let us forget—for a short while of course—our little prospective bride. We must today turn our attention to the sweet girl who is to play the second role in this wonderful wedding ceremony—the bridesmaid. How happy she is! Yet her task is a pretty hard one. She must, of course look charming, attractive, but mind you, not too attractive.

Her toilet must be lovely so as to be part of the picture but as inconspicuous as possible under the circumstances. She must be tactful and remember that the bride is—and must be—the star of the romantic performance.

Taffeta comes to the help of the puzzled bridesmaid. Taffeta dresses are this year just as popular as they were last season—and the season before—in fact, as far back as I can remember. This crisp material has been chosen in preference to any other by many charming bridesmaids.

An attractive frock may be made of peach color taffeta, the bodice exceedingly snug, with an 1830 neck line, tiny puff sleeves, while the skirt has long panels that turn back on themselves, ending in bunches of gathers above the silver girdle. Large rosettes of silver ribbon form the only trimming.

The Hat is Taffeta.

The hat to go with this gown must of course, be of the same taffeta. A garland of small roses encircles the low crown and in the back there is a rather wide bow of silver ribbon with long streamers.

What could be prettier than this other model boasting a pale blue satin foundation and an overdress of pale lavender chiffon? The underskirt is quite plain, straight although not tight; the overskirt made of tier upon tier of ruffles, each curving upward on the sides and ending in a quaint little bouquet. A tiny garland of these same miniature flowers encircles the waist and trims all the edges.

Of Pale Green

Another charming model is fashioned of pale green taffeta and white net. It is exceedingly simple in line, the taffeta foundation being cut chemise style, while the net overdress reminds one of the models worn by the Victorian belles.

The taffeta bodice is snug, with quaint little tucked and puffed sleeves of net. The overskirt is very wide, shirred around the waist and edged with a narrow silver fringe.

The hat to match is very large and should be qualified as "picturesque in the extreme." It is made of shirred white net over pale green taffeta and trimmed with a crown of pale yellow "rose pompons." You know those tiny rosebuds?

A Taffeta Cape

Very chic this frock composed of a melange of rose crepe de chine and silver lace. The bodice and underskirt are of crepe de chine, while the three wide flounces of the skirt and the tiny puff sleeves are of silver lace. Each flounce edged with a narrow ruche of natter blue velvet ribbon. The waist is encircled by a garland of roses made of old ivory chiffon.

RECIPES FOR A DAY.

Flank Roast—Take a lean piece of fresh flank. Spread on board, spread well with dressing made from bread crumbs, minced onion, powdered sage (or other seasoning), salt and pepper. Roll and tie. Roll well in flour, salt and pepper. Melt two or more tablespoons of fat in kettle. Brown meat carefully on all sides. Pour in about two cups boiling water. Slice onion on top. Cover. Set in oven, cook one and one-half hours or more, according to size. Baste often.

Pineapple Salad—Shred pineapple, place on salad plates. Put one tablespoon whipped cream on either side, also one cherry or strawberry on top of cream. Sprinkle with chopped nuts. Serve with mayonnaise made with lemon.

Red Apple Sauce—Make apple sauce same as usual. Instead of adding quite so much sugar try dropping about six red cinnamon drops in and stir till all are melted.

SUGGESTIONS.

To keep meat from lumping when making mush dampen it a little and mix the water well through it before pouring the whole thing into boiling water. Add a teaspoon of cornstarch to your meringue and it will not fall so easily.

If there is ice cream left over and you wish to keep it, soak in envelope of gelatin in water a few minutes, dissolve it in boiling water and when cool, beat it into the ice cream. Turn into a mold and put it on ice to chill.

TESTED RECIPES

Popovers—One cup of flour, one cup of milk, two eggs, one-quarter teaspoon salt.

Set cups on the stove to heat; put the flour in a bowl, making a well in the center of it; drop in the salt, then the unbeaten eggs. Add the milk gradually, stirring in widening circles from the center. Bake in buttered muffin pans or in earthen cups, in a hot oven for thirty minutes.

Cornmeal Muffins—Three-quarters cup corn meal, one and one-quarter cups wheat flour, one-half teaspoon salt, four tablespoons baking powder, two tablespoons sugar or syrup, one cup milk, two tablespoons shortening.

Sift dry ingredients into bowl; add milk and melted shortening and syrup if used and beat well. Bake in greased muffin tins in hot oven about twenty minutes.

Cheese Mousse—One-half pint whipped cream, one-half cup grated cheese, one-half teaspoon salt, juice of one-half large lemon, paprika, one-half green pepper, one-half envelope gelatin, one-half pimento chopped fine.

Mash cheese to paste, add seasoning and gelatin which has been soaked in one-half cup of cold water and dissolve in one-quarter cup of hot water. Fold in whipped cream; pour in pan lined with paper and serve on lettuce with mayonnaise. Will serve twelve persons.

Oh How Glorious to Be Free From Rheumatism's Tortures!

Just suppose you could be free from your deep-seated, agonizing rheumatic aches and pains, your stiff joints and unsightly swellings! Wouldn't you give anything to get rid of them?

You have doubtless rubbed on outside treatments; most rheumatism sufferers have. Some of these take the edge off the terrible pains for a few hours, but they do not strike at the cause, which nearly always lies in the poisoned, impoverished blood. When this is so, you need an internal remedy, one that will take out the impurities that are torturing you, one like famous S.S.S., which has relieved thousands of cases of rheumatism all over the country just this way.

Get S.S.S. from your druggist today, and after starting with it write us a history of your case, addressing Chief Medical Advisor, 877 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Georgia.

The Revolt of Vera Sanderson

By JANE PHELPS.

EAVERDROPPING—AND A TELEPHONE MESSAGE

"Will you be down tonight?" Margaret asked Keith as he left us Monday morning.

"No, not until Friday."

He had told me he would remain in town the entire week so I was prepared for his answer.

"I don't know what Alice and I will do without you," she said, ignoring me in her reply as if I did not exist.

"Oh, you'll get along all right! Then you'll have Vera now. The three of you can have all sorts of good times."

Margaret made no answer, and I said nothing. But I felt I had scored because of Keith's quick bringing in of my name. Yet a few moments after I returned from the station (I had walked there with Keith) I overheard a remark that spoiled most of my day.

Why will people talk confidences with doors ajar? And why will people mention names if they do.

I had stopped in the hall to look over the mail lying on the stand. It had come during my absence to the station, and I thought that perhaps there might be some word from Sallie as to father's condition. The door of the reception room was ajar. I heard Margaret say:

"You see what her coming has done—driven Keith away. He would have come down every night if she had remained away. I can't see what she came for. She's blind or she would see he cares nothing for her."

Then Mrs. De Lisle's husky voice: "I think you exaggerate, Margaret. I concede it doesn't look as if he were crazy about her—he has been down every night, hasn't he? But perhaps he feels he has neglected his work and must not keep it up. I'm terribly sorry. We have had such jolly times together. I expect our sailing days are over—unless we take her along."

I knew I was the her referred to. "I tell you, Alice, Keith cares nothing for her. How he ever came to marry her I can't imagine. She's not his sort at all."

"You mean she's not your sort. I never saw such a brother and sister—never saw such devotion. You should have let him marry me, Margaret, then perhaps you would have saved yourself as well as me trouble. I imagine you and I would always hit it off fairly well."

"I don't understand. Let him marry you?"

"Oh, yes you do! I held it against you for a while. I never had any proof but that time he took me down to see his father and mother. My! it is ages ago—and you were there, I knew you made him promise not to marry me."

I knew it too. Mrs. Brown had told me. Until Alice commenced to speak of herself no thought of the undignified eavesdropping I was guilty of entered my mind. I had been too interested hearing about Keith and myself. Now I moved slowly up the stairs a bit ashamed, but more than a bit chagrined.

So Margaret thought Keith had decided to remain in town because I had returned, that he was going to remain away to be rid of my society. She had said I had driven him away.

Suppose it were true! I recalled how tired Keith had looked ed when he met me at the train. How frankly he had chatted with me all the way down to the country place; how he had told me of what he had done, sailing, golfing, and the like; and tried to extract what comfort I could from the fact that he had not tried in any way to deceive me. But it was cold comfort.

"You see what her coming has done! Driven Keith away!"—this remark of Margaret's fairly screamed at me. Try as I would to forget it, it recurred every few minutes. Finally I could endure it no longer, and I called him on the long-distance telephone.

"Keith, don't be angry, but would you have come down tonight and the other nights this week if I had remained away?"

"I don't understand what you are talking about Vera. I told you I was tired out with the commuting—that all the rest I got on Saturday and Sunday did me no good because of those daily trips. Your coming had nothing to do with my decision. I am very busy. Is that all?"

"Yes, and thank you for being so nice when you are busy." He had not been particularly pleasant as to manner and voice, but his careful explanation had made me feel much better.

"Aren't you ever going to get through with that phone?" Margaret asked. I had not heard her come into the hall where the telephone was installed.

"I have just finished." She tried to get Keith, but he had just gone out.

"If you hadn't been on the phone so long, I should have caught him," she grumbled.
